

MRS. J. H. PELL GIVES HALL TO COLUMBIA

Will She Ask University to Erect Building in Husband's Memory.

REQUESTS TO 18 SERVANTS

Maid Receives $25 Monthly to Be Used in Caring for Dogs.

The transfer tax appraisal of the estate of Mrs. J. H. Pell, who died at 182 Riverside Drive May 26, 1913, discloses a total estate of $1,329,000, the bulk of which she left to educational, charitable and religious organizations.

The chief legatee is Columbia University, which receives the residuary share of the proceeds of the building at 169 and 171 Broadway. The value of this bequest is estimated by the appraiser at $272,324. Mrs. Pell asked the Columbia trustees to erect a hall in memory of her husband with the money. The bequest will not become available to the university until after the death of Mrs. Pell, who receives a life interest in the proceeds of the Broadway building.

In her will Mrs. Pell left also $200,000 each out of the proceeds of the Broadway building to Rutgers College and the General Synod of the Reformed Church for the benefit of the Rutgers Theological Seminary. The latter bequest is for the erection of the Weesels memorial building. The appraisal shows that the building is not as valuable as Mrs. Pell believed and she made the will, and that the present value of each of these bequests is only $68,081. Mrs. Pell left $500 each to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the Five Points Mission and the African Zion Methodist Episcopal Church and the Reformed Church, both of Paramus, N. J., where Mrs. Pell had her country home. She asked the General Synod of the Reformed Church to care for family burial vaults at Paramus, N. J. Mrs. Pell's estate consisted chiefly of realty and included besides the property at 169 and 171 Broadway, worth $1,110,000 and mortgaged for $304,781, 182 Riverside Drive, worth $200,000, and mortgaged for $203,125, and 184 Riverside Drive, worth $85,000. She left securities valued at $154,337. She left bequests aggregating $27,800 to eighteen servants, in amounts ranging from $5,000 downward. The other individual legatees are cousins or friends of Mrs. Pell, the principal beneficiary being her cousin, Mary C. Zabriskie, who receives more than $200,000.

After leaving a bequest of $3,000 to her maid, Bridget Clark, Mrs. Pell said: "It is my wish that my dogs shall always receive the same care I have given them, and that I know, is also the wish of my cousin Mary C. Zabriskie, to whom they will belong. My maid, Bridget Clark, has always been thoughtful and kind in looking after them, and in order that she may continue to do so, I direct that she be paid $25 a month."

Mrs. Pell explained that she left nothing to the five brothers of her husband, John H. Pell, because he had already transferred to each of them a large amount of securities and money.

MRS. CUTTER'S WILL FILED.

She Leaves Large Amount to Be Distributed Among Charities.

The will of Mrs. Amanda Gertrude Cutter, who died on April 3 and was the widow of Henry T. Cutter, founder of the Riker-Hegeman Company, who died on January 21 last, leaving his $1,500,000 estate to his wife, was filed for probate yesterday. The will was filed in response to a proceeding by heirs of Mr. Cutter directing the executors to disclose the will. One of the petitioners was James H. Montgomery, a grandson of Mr. Cutter, who wrote the play "Ready Money."

Mr. Montgomery charged that Mrs. Cutter's will had been executed through the undue influence of Frank M. Tichenor, a lawyer, and George R. K. Brewster, a banker, and that the executors, who were named as executors and who would have received the bulk of Mrs. Cutter's estate had Mrs. Cutter died before her husband. Under Mrs. Cutter's will Mr. Montgomery receives only $5,000, but Mrs. Cutter leaves the greater part of the residuary estate to the executors to be distributed among charities they may select. Mrs. Cutter gave out $200,000 to Mr. Tichenor, who would have received $500,000 had she died before her husband, and gave $100,000 to Mr. Mills, a manager of the Plaza branch of the Union Trust Company and an intimate friend of the family. Mr. Ramsey receives nothing except his commissions as executor.

Mrs. Cutter's specific bequests include $25,000 each to Presbyterian Hospital, Mount Vernon Hospital, Seney Hospital, Brooklyn; Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She gave $25,000 each to the Methodist Episcopal Home for the Aged and the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases. The city of Newburgh, Mass., where Mrs. Cutter was born, received $15,000, and $15,000 each to Mrs. Cutter's physicians, Dr. Henry W. Frauenthal and Dr. John Colville Bradner.

The children of the dead brother and a sister of Mrs. Cutter received $20,000 each, and $5,000 goes to Charlotte Cutter, a niece of Mrs. Cutter. The descendants of Mr. Cutter's first wife, Anne F. Cutter, get $10,000 each, and $125,000 to the Plaza branch of the Union Trust Company, receives $10,000.

GIVES $1,000,000 TO CHURCH.

Mrs. Sherman Paris Makes Requests to Catholic Organizations.

The will of Catherine Paris of New York and Manchester, N. H., who was the widow of Sherman Paris and died in Boston on May 2, was filed here yesterday. It bequeaths the bulk of an estate of about $1,000,000 to Roman Catholic organizations and institutions.

One of the legatees is her nephew, the Rev. Paul Rogers Pish of Kingston, N. Y., who receives a trust fund of $125,000, out of which $25,000 is to be used in building a home for himself. Mrs. Paris also left about twenty-five bequests to friends and employees in amounts of from $1,000 to $10,000.

Mrs. Paris gave $50,000 in trust to the Right Rev. George Alfred Guertin, Bishop of Manchester, for the erection of a Roman Catholic high school in Manchester in memory of the late Bishop Bradley of that city. A personal bequest of $5,000 is left to Bishop Guertin "in confidence that he will use it as I would have him use it." The residuary estate is left for Roman Catholic charities in the diocese of New Hampshire.

Mrs. Paris gave all her personal effects and a trust fund of $25,000 to Margaret Kirby, a friend, and left $40,000 to her sister, Lucy Worth of Westfield, N. J.

LOSES $300,000 WILL CONTEST.

S. C. Campbell's Widow Fails in Effort for Unborn Child.

Three marriages of Samuel C. Campbell, who at one time held a command in the Fire Department and who died on March 14 last, leaving an estate of more than $300,000, figured yesterday in the trial of a contest of Campbell's will before Surrogate Cochran.

The testimony showed that Campbell's first wife divorced him, the second died, and the third in Mrs. Tena C. Campbell, who was not on good terms with her husband at the time of his death.

Mrs. Campbell contested the will because she got only $1 and her dower interest in the real estate. She told the Surrogate that the bequest was insufficient to care for her and her child, not yet born, and complained that her husband's children by previous marriages had been disputing the fatherhood of her child.

The Surrogate ruled that there was no evidence that Campbell was of unsound mind, so he admitted the will to probate. The Surrogate also said he believed the statements concerning Mrs. Campbell's unborn child to be groundless.

SUES FOR PROCEEDS OF THE LATTA NAPOLEANA

George W. Elkins Demands
Share of Sale at Anderson's on Judgment of $12,612.

The notable collection of Napoleana gathered by William J. Latta of Philadelphia, consisting of autograph letters, books, documents, prints, medals and bronzes, is the subject of a suit filed in the Supreme court yesterday by George W. Elkins of Philadelphia, who has been trying since last fall to collect a judgment against Mr. Latta. The suit is brought against Mr. Latta and his wife, Kitty B. Latta, and the Anderson Auction Company, where the collection has been on sale for some months.

The complaint states that Mr. Elkins got a judgment for $12,402 against Latta in the Court of Common Pleas of Pennsylvania in September 1913. He then laid claim to the collection and exhibited an assignment to her dated February 7, 1913. She filed a bond for $25,000 and had the attachment discharged. The suit against Latta was tried here last week and Mr. Elkins got judgment by default for $12,612.

In the complaint filed yesterday Mr. Elkins alleges that the assignment to Mrs. Latta was made to defraud Latta's creditors, and particularly Mr. Elkins, and for the purpose of putting the collection out of his reach. He asks the court to vacate the assignment as void on the ground of fraud and to order the sale of the collection and the proceeds thereof to be turned over to him to apply on the judgment.

Mr. Elkins then brought suit in New York to enforce the judgment in this State and obtained an attachment against the collection of Napoleana. Mrs. Latta then laid claim to the collection and exhibited an assignment to her dated February 7, 1913. She filed a bond for $25,000 and had the attachment discharged. The suit against Latta was tried here last week and Mr. Elkins got judgment by default for $12,612.

In the complaint filed yesterday Mr. Elkins alleges that the assignment to Mrs. Latta was made to defraud Latta's creditors, and particularly Mr. Elkins, and for the purpose of putting the collection out of his reach. WILLS AND APPRAISALS.

ARTHUR R. MORRIS, who died December 17, 1912, at Yokohama, Japan, left a total estate of $385,001. He got $146,928 to his niece, Mary Morris Ostrander, and a life interest in the same amount to his nephew, Gerard Morris Barretto, at whose death the fund will be divided among institutions as follows: Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church, $22,957; General Education Society, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor and Fund for Widows and Orphans of Deceased Clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church, $9,195 each, and American Church Building Society, $4,951.

EMMA WALLACH, who died at 11 East Sixty-third street on October 9 last, left $569,925. Almost the entire estate went to relatives in Austria. She gave $2,000 each to the Spanish and Portuguese synagogues and the same amount to her friend, Emma Frank.

SYDNEY H. CARRAGAN, who died at his Brooklyn home, 782 East Seventeenth street, May 4, devoted a paragraph of his will to the disposition of thirty canes, three fishing rods, fifty pipes and a library. His sons, Lester H. and Sydney B., are the recipients.

The sons also received his jewelry, several thousands of dollars worth of stock and the reversion of the $50,000 estate, which is left to the widow, Margaret Carragan, for life.

OHIO WORKMEN'S LAW PRAISED.

William C. Archer Tells Industrial League of State Insurance.

William C. Archer, secretary of the Industrial Commission of Ohio, outlined the scheme of State insurance, which has been in operation for a year and a half. He said that it was not so much a question of added burden as it was a matter of more equitable distribution, the employee having borne the entire burden under the old system.

He said that 35,000 cases of workmen's compensation had been handled in his State since the enactment of the law. Only eleven damage suits have been started since the law went into effect. Three were withdrawn, three were lost by the employees and the others are still pending. His opinion is that the insurance would operate to burden the employer beyond reason and would also promote malingering.

Mr. Archer said that Ohio had the same provision in her law, but limited the period to six years. He denied that the two-thirds rule operated to burden the employer, asserting that the absolute loss which must be borne somewhere is actually borne equally by employer and employee. He said it was not so much a question of added burden as it was a matter of more equitable distribution, the employee having borne the entire burden under the old system.

"THE LEGEND OF THE MUSES."

Musical Festival for Anti-Tuberculosis Association Opens in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., May 18.—"The Legend of the Muses," a musical festival in three parts by Emil Hofmann, was presented at the Shubert Theatre to-night for the benefit of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association. The production will be continued through the week.

The principals in the opening part were Agnes B. Cody, Haensel; Mrs. Leonora Fischbein, Gretel; Ethelbert Furlong, the Witch; Edith Keck, Snow White, and Agnes Gillen, a Sprite. Thirty girls appeared as fairies, gnomes and animals.

Fifty-three girls took part in the ballets, which were produced under the direction of Vincent Romeo, formerly balletmaster of the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Dr. Auelin Goetz was conductor.

The principals in "The Legend of the Muses," which concluded the performance, were Edgar Haver, Roland F. Randolph, Miss Cody, Miss Keck, Mrs. Fischbein, Miss Florence Muller, Miss Edythe Norris, Miss Gertrude Pfeiffer, Mr. Hofmann, Edgar Kiefer, Albert Eriar and Miss Agatha Gillen.

The boxes were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowman of Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson, Mrs. Warren Mitchell, Miss Abbie Mitchell, Miss Deborah Berger, Mrs. Ida Irwin, Mrs. T. M. Braden, Mrs. Charles Allen, Mrs. F. E. Goulder and Mrs. C. O. Padelford.

BARONESS MAY TELL OF $2,500,000 LOVE SUIT

Judge Mayer to Decide Point
To-day in Case Against St. Louis Man.

Judge Mayer of the United States District Court will decide this morning whether the Baroness Barbara Ursula von Kallnowski must produce her love letters and tell United States Commissioner Gilchrist how she followed a St. Louis paint manufacturer from one city to another in Europe and finally across the Atlantic in the hope of some day becoming his wife.

The Baroness brought a $2,500,000 breach of contract suit against Michael J. Hurley of St. Louis in the Federal courts of that city last April. She is now living at Ninety-fifth street and Riverside Drive. The defendant through his attorneys got an order calling for her examination and that of Otto Hartmann before Commissioner Gilchrist yesterday morning.

The plaintiff failed to appear at the appointed hour and her attorneys were notified by telephone that she would be declared in default. They produced their client later in the day, but protested that it was irregular to take the deposition of the plaintiff in a suit before the trial was called. Judge Mayer ruled that Hartmann would have to testify before the Commissioner at 10:30 o'clock this morning, but reserved decision in the case of the Baroness von Kallnowski.

The Baroness now says that because of her affair with Hurley she is prohibited by the customs of her own country from marrying a man of her own rank. She says that she spent $15,000 traveling from one place to another in response to telegrams from Hurley in which she says he promised to marry her in each place; $10,000 for wearing apparel, $25,000 for her trousseau and $25,000 in hotel bills.

ADMIRAL SIR CHARLES DRURY.

Second Sea Lord of British Admiralty for Five Years.

LONDON, May 18.—Admiral Sir Charles Drury, who was Second Sea Lord of the Admiralty from 1903 to 1908, died to-day at the age of 68. He entered the navy in 1859.

Admiral Sir Charles Drury was born at Rothsay, New Brunswick, Canada, August 27, 1846. He was a Sub-Lieutenant in 1865, a Lieutenant in 1868, Commander in 1873, Captain in 1885 and Rear Admiral in 1890. He was an aide-de-camp to the late Queen Victoria for three years and served as senior officer at several naval stations. He retired in 1911 after thirty-two years of service. He was knighted on his retirement. He was the recipient of many foreign decorations.

Dr. Daniel Morris Woolley.

Dr. Daniel Morris Woolley died last night in the Midwood Sanitarium, Flatbush. He was a nose and throat specialist of repute and one time he was surgeon in the Kings County Hospital. For twenty years he conducted a private hospital at 55 Willoughby street, Brooklyn. His home was at 75 Clarkson street, Flatbush. Dr. Woolley was born at Deal, N. J. He was graduated from the medical school of the New York University.

Mrs. Carolina Greenfield Hilliard.

Mrs. Carolina Greenfield Hilliard died yesterday at the Hotel St. Andrew in her fifty-second year. She was a daughter of Ernest Greenfield, founder of the firm of E. Greenfield & Sons, confectioners, and the widow of Charles Henry Hilliard, formerly of the stock house on the corner of South Main & Hilliard. She was interested in many charitable associations and was for some years a vice-president of the Home for Crippled Children. She leaves a son, Ernest Hilliard.

Mrs. Antonina Warner.

Mrs. Antonina Warner, wife of George B. Warner, a retired antique dealer, died suddenly of heart disease late last night at her home, 18 East Fifty-seventh street. She was born in Paris fifty-eight years ago and leaves a daughter and two sons, George B. Warner, Jr., manager for the Westinghouse Company in Paris, and Dr. Lawrence Warner of Philadelphia.

CITY PRETTY CLEAN ALREADY.

So This Year's "Cleanup" Fails to Disclose Mass of Rubbish.

This old town was so cleared of its rubbish in its last annual spring cleanup held last year, that there is little to be done this year. That is, comparatively little, for actually the useless matter that has been allowed to accumulate last year amounts to thousands of cart loads and 400 wagons and 1,200 men, besides the full Street Cleaning Department force, will be working all week to clear it away. But instead of the huge mounds of rubbish seen last year, the average amount of rubbish taken out of each house this year filled only a barrel or two. As this year's cleanup was advertised as extensively as last year's and as there is no reason to believe that householders did not clean as thoroughly as last year it is a fair assumption that the smaller amount of rubbish is due to a smaller supply; that is, that the town is cleaner.

DECLARES SCHOOLS ARE SAFE.

Those Not Fireproof Have Prevention
Appliances, Says F. A. Forgee.

The public school buildings of this city are not fire traps—Frederick A. Forgee. This statement, by a well known consulting engineer, is made in the current issue of the Proceedings of the Board of Education, and in response to a question of the Board of Education as to the safety of the city's schools. Mr. Forgee says that no building provided with adequate means of exit is a fire trap and that every school in New York is amply equipped with such facilities.

Mr. Forgee says that no building provided with adequate means of exit is a fire trap and that every school in New York is amply equipped with such facilities. He says that the Board of Education is doing an active work, not only to make new buildings fireproof but to install fire prevention methods and appliances in old buildings.

"It is conceded," said Mr. Forgee, "that New York is the first city in this country to adopt standard fireproof construction for all its public school buildings and that it was also the first city to take up the opening work of the army of protection work in its older buildings."

CASH STIRS ARTISTS' REVOLT.

Nine Quit When They Hear Show
Here Didn't Pay.

Nine of the twenty-five members of the Association of American Painters and Sculptors resigned yesterday after the reading of a report of the treasurer. This report showed that the receipts during the opening month of the armory show amounted to upward of $70,000 and that the total receipts therefrom and from exhibitions held in Chicago and Boston were $32,000. It was reported that the receipts of the association had lost money on the New York show, but had come out ahead on the out of town exhibitions.

Those who resigned are Sherry Fry, George Beane, Leon Dabo, Guy Peter Du Bois, Robert Henri, John Sloan, George Luks,
